

JANUARY 21, 2020

Physiology Seminar Series

Dr. Romain Harmancey, Assistant Professor of Physiology & Biophysics, will be present, "Role of Hypertinsulinemia in Cardiovascular Complications Associated with Diabetes" at noon on Wednesday, Jan. 22, in room CW106 of the Classroom Wing.

Wang and Speed to present at CRRC WIP Meeting

Dr. Zhen Wang, Assistant Professor, Department of Physiology & Biophysics will present, "TRPC6 Deficiency causes Obesity and Metabolic Dysfunction" and Dr. Josh Speed, Assistant Professor, Department of Physiology & Biophysics, will present, "Endothelin in Obesity Related Insulin Resistance" on Thursday, January 23 at 1 pm in G451.

Congratulations to Olivia Travis, Graduate Student, Department of Pharmacology & Toxicology for receiving an F31 NIH Grant titled, "A Role for Natural Killer Cells in the Development of Intrauterine Growth Restriction and Hypertension During Pregnancy". The grant will begin on 4/1/2020.

KUDOS CORNER

For more information contact:
crrc@umc.edu