“Racial and Ethnic Disparities in Interpersonal Violence”

Paula Bingham Granger

Training and Technical Assistance Coordinator
Mississippi Coalition Against Domestic Violence

Paula Bingham Granger is the Training and Technical Assistance Coordinator for the Mississippi Coalition Against Domestic Violence. In this position, she is afforded the opportunity to be a part of one of the most important causes in our state, country and the world - helping to raise awareness about interpersonal violence. She does this by offering support to Mississippi's certified domestic violence shelters, coordinating statewide trainings on various aspects of domestic violence (including developing presentations), representing the Coalition at awareness events, speaking to teens and adults, offering tools to form healthy relationships and to identify signs of unhealthy ones. Ms. Granger serves as Senior Advisor to the Coalition's Teen Advisory Council.

She is the mother of three adult children—Reuben, Rachel and Ryan—and, a graduate of Jackson State University with a degree in Communications.
